Last of a Six Part Offering

This is the last week of presenting some of the great features of our free parish resource: Formed.org. The information which has been shared in the past six weeks is not exhaustive of the content of Formed, but hopefully it will provide some motivation to regularly access the website and draw upon its resources. Highlighted this week are the many small group studies which are on Formed. All the necessary programs and materials are on Formed so that you can gather your circle of friends and use these small group resources for study and conversation.

Some of these small group resources include:

1. 33 Days to Morning Glory and other presentations hosted by Fr. Michael Gaitley MC. Fr. Gaitley has a tremendous gift to teach and help us claim the treasures of faith as examined through the lens of Saint Faustina, Our Blessed Mother, and others.
2. Discipleship Groups – through programs like Symbolon, the study of the Apostle Peter, Evangelization study and the study on the Eucharist, people can come together to be edified in claiming the wisdom of the Church and be informed and motivated to share that wisdom with others.
3. One of my favorites is a study on the media in our modern age. In the world of smart phones, apps and all kinds of channels of connection to each other electronically, it's important to know how the media impacts our lives for the sake of managing it before it manages us. How does media hinder our help our listening to the voice of God? Find out in the group study entitled, "Modern Media".
